Academic profile.

Marketing academic and industry practitioner holding an MSc in Global Marketing Management and a BA (Hons) in Tourism Management, both from Asia Pacific University, Kuala Lumpur. Has taught undergraduate and master's marketing, e-commerce and supply chain modules at MNU Business School and MI College, including subject coordination, assessment design and Applied Project supervision. Co-author of peer-reviewed research on guesthouse tourism and e-marketing in the Maldives (36 citations). Draws on over a decade of marketing and tourism industry experience (since 2011) to ground theory in local business practice.

Research interests: online visibility of small tourism businesses, including in AI-generated answers (generative engine optimisation); booking intermediaries and resource dependence; small island developing states (SIDS); guesthouse and SME development; e-marketing.

Proposed doctoral research (from 2027): "From Rented to Owned Visibility", the Maldives Tourism Visibility Observatory (MTVO). A proposed longitudinal study that builds and validates a multi-channel Visibility Index, applies it each month to a panel of small Maldivian tourism businesses with seasonal owner interviews, and extends resource dependence theory to algorithmic intermediaries such as AI assistants.

Teaching areas: Introduction to Marketing; International Marketing; Electronic Marketing; Brand Management; Business Entrepreneurship; E-commerce; Digital Marketing; Supply Chain Management.
